Firefighting: hard, dirty work

by Joan Shields

An illegal three-day firemen's strike ended early Sunday morning when representatives of the 2400 City of Montreal firemen and the city administration agreed on a $750 cost-of-living bonus for 1974.

Fifty-five fire chiefs were on duty during the strike, attending fires over the weekend. Fire departments in Longueuil, Cote St. Luc, Outremont, Hampstead and St. Laurent were ordered to put out Montreal fires.

A spokesman for the firefighters said "though we have a money problem, the most important reason for the strike is our opposition to the undue pressure and threats we are receiving from higher levels. An important point in the settlement is that one worker who was fired recently for his union activities will be rehired."

The $750 lump sum for 1974 as a compensation for the cost of living is in addition to a 4.3 per cent annual increase already agreed upon. The city administration tried to use the $750 as a lever for 1975 negotiations according to a union spokesman, but the firemen refused, wanting to work out the 1975 contract at a later date.

by Joan Shields

One of the worst fires this weekend completely destroyed a block of 20 buildings at the Sherbrooke and Amherst Street intersection, leaving 150 families homeless. Following the wage settlement a City of Montreal fireman manning the pumps was interviewed and asked his feelings on the strike and his job.

"I felt pretty funny coming back to work — a lot of people in Montreal were angry at us for striking — but there was no other way we could bargain," he said. Called in to fight a serious fire at Sherbrooke and Amherst Streets at 6:30 Sunday morning, he had been working for over 10 hours.

"I've been a fireman for 14 years, but I can't say how much longer I can keep on at this job. I have five children and my wife doesn't have a paying job. I work as a fireman 42 hours a week and on my days off I drive a truck for extra money. I know my contract doesn't allow it, but I need the second job — most of the other men do it."

"I have four sons who play hockey, but with my two jobs I can't play with them as much as I'd like to.

"We work 10 hours on a day shift and 14 hours on a night shift, and switch back and forth every week. It's hard, dirty work. There's always the stench of burning and there's always the danger of a gas line exploding or walls of a building collapsing on you.

"Some people think firemen sit around in the station and play cards all the time. I've worked in the east end of the city for four years and in St. Henri before that, and we're always busy. There's always fires to fight."

Asked if there were more fires than usual during the strike, the fireman replied: "There are around 5 or 6 fires in the city every night, but they're put out when they're still small, and the newspapers don't hear about them."

"I'm happy we won the fight."

Increase, the $750 will help out a lot. I just hope that people will be able to see our side of the fight."

Open Meeting: Women's Union

An open meeting of the McGill Women's Union will be held today at 12 noon in the Union ballroom. All female undergraduate, graduate and part-time students are urged to attend. (Please bring ID cards.)

The purpose of the meeting is to officially revive the Women's Union, legally a Students' Society organization, which has not been in operation in recent years.

There is a great need for an organization catering to the particular needs of women at university.

The Women's Union will provide a focus and coordination centre for projects ranging from a library resource centre for women to self-help clinics and day-care. It will provide funds from the yearly $1500 Students' Society grant and give women a voice on campus through the Women's Union President on Students' Council.

We urge all female students to come to this meeting in order to make this a powerful organization.

Cagers tip-off season tomorrow

Sports

by Ian Wong

"We're going to have to run... play a wide open kind of basketball."

So were the words of Butch Staples, coach of the varsity basketball team, in anticipation of the Redmen's first taste of competition against the Vanier College Cheetahs in an exhibition match tomorrow night.

This year's formation will see a lot of new faces with only three members of the team having worn the red 'n' white before. This problem, however, is not the only one confronting the team.

This year's squad is "generally small for a university team," averaging at just over six feet in height. As opposed to this, last year they measured in on the average at six foot three.

"Last year, they tried to put it all together," Staples went on to say. With such imposing members as 6'10" Kit Kennard and 6'8" George Peredy, it cut in on the playing time which those returning this year probably could have picked up. Graduation and eligibility restrictions however have taken away these two plus the majority of last season's squad, which finished up with a fourth place record of eight wins and nine losses, and which narrowly missed beating Sir George for the league championship.

Assessing this year's team as "generally low on experience," Staples stated that "We're going to have to give them experience."

This season's formation will see returnees David Kassie, Jeff Sahimerdan and 6'7" Peter Radman. All three have been members of the Redmen for the past two years.

From the CEGEP ranks, the new additions include Art McMillan and Rolly Brisset. McMillan, who was captain of the Vanier squad last year, brings many years of experience to McGill. Brisset was outstanding at Maisonneuve last season, making the CEGEP all-star team the past two years as well. Coincidentally, both are also recuperating from injuries, McMillan having sustained wrist damage and Brisset, torn ligaments.

Rounding off the team are names such as Cliff Bochner, Joe Dylewski, and Ralph and Harald Ludwig, all of whom starred in intramural play together with Tom Kovacs, Glenn Newell and Benjamin Bortock.

On the surface, the alignment is no comparison to Loyola or Sir George, two teams which are extremely notorious for recruiting players from the U.S., however Staples has promised "an exciting type of basketball to watch" which may catch the rest of the league off guard.

If last Friday's scrimmage against a group of assorted past team members and others was any indication of things to come, Staples' prophecy may yield positive results sooner than he had originally believed.

Staples continued by explaining the general strategy to be adopted in view of the general height disadvantage. He underlined the need for constant pressure, both on offence and defence. "We can't allow them to get set up" and "have to force some turnovers." When asked whether speed would be a decisive factor for the team, he replied that the team was "not superfast" but that "we're okay."

So, who will the Redmen be doing battle with this season? Since the end of last season, Sherbrooke, Macdonald and CMR have withdrawn, leaving Loyola, Sir George, Laval, Bishop's and Three Rivers (UQTR). They have their work cut out for them.

In preparation for this, "a tough exhibition schedule" has been set up, starting with tomorrow night's contest against Vanier and continuing with games against Ottawa on Friday and Queen's on Saturday afternoon. All of these pre-season games will be played at McGill in the Currier gym.

Vanier was the number two CEGEP basketball team last year, losing out to Dawson in quest of the provincial championship. The word has it that they have recruited some good high school players over the summer so it should prove to be a good match. Game time is 8:00 PM.

Redmen hockey reporter needed. Must meet three of these four requirements: observant, knowledgeable, good command of the English language, and a sunny disposition.

CAR supports Haitians

by Michael LeDonna

The 1500 illegal Haitian immigrants ordered to leave Canada by the Immigration Department are being championed by a new group at McGill, the Committee Against Racism (CAR).

McGill's CAR is one of 46 branches of the international CAR formed in 1973 to oppose recent "academic" studies, like those of Arthur Jensen, purporting to prove the inferiority of certain racial types to others.

CAR's priorities are determined on the local level by each branch. The Montreal branch at McGill is now concentrating on supporting the Haitians' fight against the Immigration Department's deportation order.

Howard Woodhouse, a member of CAR and a lecturer at the education faculty, says that Canada's restrictive immigration policy is "racist by nature."

CAR is working closely with the Committee for Action Against Deportation (CAAD), a group formed by the Haitians threatened with deportation. CAAD has appealed the refusal of Minister of Immigration and Manpower Robert Andras to grant visas.

A spokesman for CAAD, who refused to divulge his name "for obvious reasons," called the deportation order a "political move by the government, using the Haitian in the sense that immigrants are the main reason for the rise in unemployment and other economic problems."

CAR is circulating petitions and has telegraphed Andras asking that the deportation order be rescinded.

CAR spokesman Woodhouse says that impetus for racist actions such as the deportation move comes from the "pseudo-scientific theories offered by so-called scientists in universities about race."

Woodhouse says these theories take two forms. The "hard-core theory" asserts that Blacks and Chicanos are genetically inferior to Whites. "These scientists would say that they (Blacks) occupy the lower positions in society because of their bad gene pool."

The "soft core theory," says Woodhouse, holds that Blacks are not genetically inferior but have been culturally and verbally deprived. He includes social workers as proponents of this theory because "these people believe the pathological Negro family causes their problems. But this is a form of 'blaming the victim' — instead of fixing the true culprit, society, they wish to alter the victim Negro families."

As one CAR member, Robin Philpot, puts it, "Capitalism and racism operate as reinforcements for each other. Canada's political and economic institutions are racist."

The Haitians, he says, are only the most recent scapegoats of the racist policies of Canada. According to Philpot, these policies are designed to cover up the "inadequacies of our system."

Research Centre an asset To the Daily:

Your article in the October 21 issue of the Daily concerning the Raptor Research Centre at Macdonald College contained a statement that was very misleading. In the article it was indicated that the main reason the McGill Development Program Committee rejected the Centre's request for funding was that the Faculty of Agriculture had not shown enough support for it. The Faculty of Agriculture constitutes some 80 people, and while individual members are not in a position to provide the necessary financial support, there is no doubt that the majority of Faculty members consider the Raptor Research Centre a valuable asset to this campus.

At a recent meeting of the Faculty, the following motion was passed and I was instructed to convey its contents to you —

"It was moved and seconded that the Faculty does believe the Centre to be a worthy project and will continue to support it."

H.R. Klinck,
Secretary,
Faculty of Agriculture.

Ol' Macdonald had an egg...

To the Daily:

Regarding Bonnie Price's article on Macdonald college (Daily, October 21); what we at Macdonald College are mentally and physically isolated from is smog, heavy traffic, poor parking facilities, wailing sirens, lack of identity, and all those other wonderful attributes of a cement jungle. Perhaps if the McGill campus took more financial and spiritual interest in the Macdonald College affairs, student or otherwise, we could all benefit from each other's experiences. At least we can appreciate the fact that an egg comes from a chicken and not a supermarket.

Jerome Rousseau, guest visitor to the Anthropology Department, describes his studies in Borneo.

Anthropologist studies Borneo

by David Bowler

The Anthropology Students' Association is sponsoring a series of lunch-hour seminars on the difficulties faced in anthropology fieldwork. The first talk was given by anthropologist Jerome Rousseau who has recently come back from Malaysia, where he did a study of the Kayan of Borneo.

"The Kayan of Borneo don't have much of an idea of being part of Malaysia. They feel they are being colonized by Malaysia," Rousseau said. "A lot of bad things could happen to them in the future. It depends on what the government wants to do with them. Their problem is they are so divided that they have very little political power."

Rousseau also said the Malaysian government is bent on converting the tribe to Islam. "If they try, they are going to have lots of problems."

Rousseau went to Borneo because he wanted to go to a Southeast Asian country "where there was not much danger of being expelled for political reasons. When you get one grant for field research, you don't get another."

Rousseau's thesis, on the religion and social organization of the Kayan, is soon to be published. A copy has been submitted to the Malaysian government. "It will help them make better informed judgments, and at worst, they will not read it."

More seminars are scheduled for this term: on Nov. 21, Bernard Arcand will speak on "Genocide on a daily basis: the Cuvel of Colombia". On Dec. 12, Peter Gutkind will speak on "Role conflicts in research: Africa." Meetings are at 1 pm, in Leacock 720.

We know it took a lot to get where you are today.
With us, you'll get the opportunity to get where you want tomorrow.

We're Northern Electric and we'd like to talk to engineering, finance and accounting graduates.

You may already know something about us — we're a large Canadian-owned telecommunications manufacturer. But as a prospective employer, we know you need to know a lot more about us. How big are we? What's our growth story? How do we treat people? How about salaries?

Soon we'll have Northern Electric people on campus who'll be able to answer all your questions in detail. But to help you decide if such a get-together would be advantageous, we will tell you this: we're big, over 27,000 employees in five countries; we're growing fast (in fact, we're one of the largest and fastest growing telecommunications manufacturers in the world!). Last year we opened or began work on nine new plants. We've just chalked up a half-year record sales and record profits. But, as booming as we are, we know we've just touched the surface. There's a whole world waiting for better means of communication.

So we need ambitious engineers who can be as creative with telecommunications technology as our sales people are with market development — and finance and accounting people whose expertise with money can match our scientists' talent for discovery.

Of course, our standards are high. But then, so are the financial rewards and career securities for graduates who can help us achieve our goals. If what we can offer appears to match what you want, talk to your Campus Placement Officer — he'll arrange that we get together.
